The Market Challenge

Consumers are using their mobile devices to manage many aspects of their day-to-day lives, expecting enhanced control and information in real time. Yet most have too many apps on their phones that are used infrequently, if at all. The wallets installed on today's Apple and Android devices have become a common hub for payments, passes, identification and more, with new functionality added as smartphones evolve.

With ACI Walletron, you can add a branded, dynamic pass to your customers' Apple or Google Wallets, driving increased self-service, faster payments and higher engagement. The ACI Walletron pass overcomes app fatigue and augments existing digital and mobile strategies, providing a familiar, secure experience trusted by consumers around the world.

The ACI Advantage

ACI Walletron leverages the mobile wallets already installed on today's leading smartphone platforms, enabling companies to deliver real-time account or loyalty program information and notifications via Apple and Google Wallets. It also simultaneously provides customers with the digital experiences they expect and prefer while reducing your operational costs.

Drive Self-Service and Lower Costs

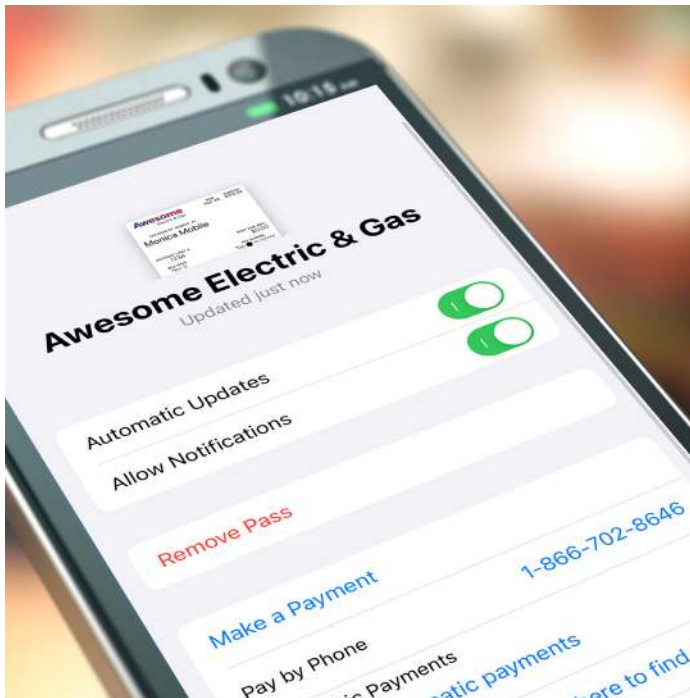

- Easy self-guided or CSR-assisted enrollment launches a modern, mobile experience for your customers on day one
- Provides a familiar experience that encourages paperless communications, prompts faster payments and enables self-service account management

Augment Your Existing Digital Strategy

- Real-time, targeted notifications get noticed and drive action
- Configurable, actionable links and NFC capabilities enable customers to continue their journey in your app, on your website or at the point of sale
- Continuously optimize customer experiences with insights into links clicked, payments made and notification reaction times

Trusted and Secure

- Within the Apple or Google Wallet, the ACI Walletron pass is secured by passcode or biometric authentication, providing a trusted, secure experience without requiring another ID and password.
